The Refuge for the Righteous

Hiram Kemp

The Book of Psalms is filled with encouragement for the people of God. The human life is filled with many concerns and needs, but the Psalms addresses them all. The remedy that is given throughout the Psalms for human problems is to focus more on God than on the enemies and problems that surround us. It is easy to focus our eyes on the immediate, but we should seek and meditate on the things that are above (Col. 3:2). Psalm 46 should be consulted frequently by God's people, and especially in times of despair. With another church shooting taking place this week, there is a lot of discussion over how Christians should respond. What should the church do in order to prepare for a possible attack? How can Christians worship in spirit, in truth, and also in peace while they are thinking of possible physical threats to the assembly? There are many things that we cannot control, but we can trust the one who is always in control (Col. 1:16-17; Heb. 1:3). Christians should be wise and take necessary precautions at all times, but in the end, we must remember that God is our ultimate defense. Notice what the Psalmist says to the people of God about the refuge God provides for the righteous.

God Is Present in Trouble (Psa. 46:1)

God is a very present help in time of trouble. We should focus on the fact that God is always with us. Jesus promised his disciples that he would be with them at all times until the end of the age (Mt. 28:20). Sometimes earthly friends forsake us in times of difficulty, but God will never abandon us (Heb. 13:5-6). Christians can stand boldly in times of hardship and difficulty because God will fight with us and for us (Ex. 14:14). When the Jews were heading into Babylonian captivity, God promised to be with them when they passed through the waters and through the fires (Isa. 43:2). We should expect no less today. The fact that God will be with us does not mean there will be a miraculous deliverance, but that there will always be divine presence and that is enough to soothe our hearts during the turbulent times of our lives. We sing the song, "Anywhere with Jesus." The truth is if we are in Christ, everywhere we go he is with us and that should produce confidence (Psa. 46:11). So many focus on the danger that is present, but we should be pointing our attention to the Lord who is ever present with us.

There Is Nothing to Fear (Psa. 46:2-3)

God has not given us the spirit of fear; this is from the enemy (2 Tim. 1:7). Since God is with us and nothing can overpower him or catch him off guard, we have nothing to fear. The world around us may be running in fear and unsure of what the future holds, but Christians know better. A. W. Tozer said, "While it looks like things are out of control, behind the scenes there is a God who has not surrendered his authority." Tragedies should concern us, but they must never shipwreck our faith. If we lose our faith in times of trouble, we lose our God when we need him most (Heb. 11:6). The devil may change costumes and vary his assaults, but we are not ignorant of his schemes (2 Cor. 2:11). The worst thing that man can do to us is take our lives, but man cannot touch our soul (Mt. 10:28). If we are in a right relationship with God, we can face the worst this world has to offer and realize to die in Christ is gain (Phil. 1:21). If we live to be a hundred, but die outside of Christ, what good would that be (Mt. 10:26)? We should pray with our full confidence in God, make wise and safe choices, and leave the rest to the Lord. It is God's job to watch over and protect us, and we believe he will. It is our job to be faithful to him no matter what (Rev. 2:10). Fear never helps us accomplish the will of God. It simply cripples the mind and handicaps our progress. Let us be bold and remember that our help is in the Lord who made heaven and earth (Psa. 121:2).

Conclusion

Psalm 46 ends by telling God's people to be still and know that he is God (Psa. 46:10). We are often too busy and forget to be still. When we stop for a minute and meditate on God's power, wisdom, and knowledge, it helps us keep things in perspective. Remember that God is present; do not be afraid; and be still and know who is in control.

An Every Day Lesson on “Grace & Works”

A day or so after Halloween, I was listening to a local morning live radio talk show. Somehow the three hosts started talking about whether “trick-or-treaters” actually earned their Halloween candy. To my surprise, not a single host thought the children earned Halloween candy! True, they discussed, children had to dress in a costume and walk the neighborhood, but even with all that effort and sweat, their collection of candy was still based on the generosity of the people in those houses who participated. That provides a great spiritual principle: even people in the world know the nature of a gift and receiving a gift, at least when they are talking about every day occurrences. For some reason, though, when it comes to salvation they cannot grasp that God’s gracious gift still requires human effort to receive. Paul wrote, “For by grace you have been saved through faith, and that not of yourselves; it is the gift of God, not of works, lest anyone should boast” (Eph. 2:8-9). The typical denominational church member will say this verse teaches salvation is wholly by God’s grace and there is nothing we can do to receive it. Such an idea, however, simply is not true, as even these radio talk show hosts acknowledge. True, some works are excluded from salvation, such as the works of the Law of Moses (Gal. 3:10, 12) and the works of human boasting (Titus 3:4-5). However, some works are included in salvation, such as works of faith. Noah, for example, “found (continued below)

The End of Your Search for a Friendly Church . . .

Thank You to all those who came to the teaching workshop last Sunday. It is encouraging to see so many interested. We look forward to the new quarter of Bible study!

(continued from above) grace in the eyes of the LORD” (Gen. 6:8), and that was in the midst of a world where “the wickedness of man was great ... [and] every intent of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually” (Gen. 6:5). Yet, Noah did as God instructed (Gen. 6:22; 7:5), so that the Hebrews writer said Noah was saved “by faith” (Heb. 11:7). Both Abraham and Rahab are said to have received great blessings from God “by faith” (Heb. 11:17, 31), yet James, speaking of the same incidents, said they were saved “by works” (Jas. 2:21, 25). The truth is that grace, faith, and God-approved works go together in God’s plan of salvation. Even Paul went on to say, “For we are His workmanship, created in Christ Jesus for good works, which God prepared beforehand that we should walk in them” (Eph. 2:10). Even radio hosts realize a free gift is still free, even if effort is required to receive it! Have we been saved by grace through faith? ❤️ Brian
